

FROM*freshman to Seniorwhich certificates are worth having?

After entering the university, the first thing to do is to make a preliminary plan for your four-year college life. The four-year study plan is even more essential. Among them, no matter the grade you are in, the "research" must be a course that every college student will consider.

Below, let's take a look at the table to see what certificates can you take to enrich yourself from freshman to senior.

According to incomplete statistics, there are more than 100 kinds of certificates that college students can apply for, which are divided into general, competent and vocational qualifications. Among them, English and computer are general-purpose certificates, which are the "required testimony" for college students; the ability certificates include TOEFL and IELTS. English intermediate and advanced interpreting qualification certificates; professional qualification certificates, including certified public accountants and national judicial examination certificates.

How can research and development help future development?

Certificates are not only a reflection of learning ability and professional skills, but more importantly, they can improve their knowledge-related knowledge structure and enrich their knowledge reserves in the process of applying for professional qualification certificates. At the same time, it's a great help for them to have a very good future development for individuals.

Improve professional competitiveness:

In today's society, the competitions in the workplace are fierce and far beyond imagination. These certificates are the keys that can help you open the door to the workplace. With this key, you can travel unimpeded in the workplace. At the same time, professional qualifications are still needed for career development, which are more closely related to salary.

Increase opportunities for further study:

Nowadays, continuing to study has become the choice of many students. Many students are striving to pursue higher education and better opportunities for further study. To obtain a certificate will also increase your chances of further study.

What certificates should I take in college?

CATTI

English certificate:*College English Test Band 4 and 6:

The CET4 certificate is a must-have certificate for the university, and the higher the scores of the 4th and 6th grades, the greater the competitiveness in the postgraduate entrance examination and employment.

TOEFL and IELTS: Students who go abroad according to the school request for selection.

Calculator licence:*National Computer Test Band 2:

In today's age, it is very important to master the operation of office software, not only in universities, but also in future work. Therefore, the importance of obtaining computer certificates is self-evident. Others such as: ACCA, MCSA, CCNA. And a wide range of special skills computer certificates, related to specific job choices in the future, from which students can choose according to their career plans.

Putonghua Proficiency Test:

Mandarin is the basis of communication, and many professions have a level requirement for Mandarin. Relatively speaking, the Mandarin certificate is relatively good and must be obtained. The Mandarin level certificate is a must-have certificate for broadcast-professional students, and must be at the level of more than one level. Students who want to take the teacher qualification certificate must first reach the second grade B or above in Mandarin. When you are starting to work, some industries, such as practitioners in the public service industry, also have requirement for Mandarin.

作者：张茂

指导老师：牛奔林